(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Feb. 26 .- (Special.) -- Miss Jennie Thomas, who last night shot and killed Fred Broderson for accomplishing her rula and then refusing to marry her, is still in a critical condition, though there are some hopes held out for her recovery. Today at the hospital Miss Thomas made a statement under oath to the coroner that she had not gone to Broderson's room with the intention of killing him.

"I had no intention of killing Fred," she said, "when I went to his room, but I had determined if he refused to marry me, that I would kill myself in his presence.

She stated further that Broderson had started toward her to strike her before she fired the fatal shot. "I went to his room," she said, "and found that he was talking to some man. I waited until the visitor left, stepping into the room of George Wherritt. After Broderson's guest had feft, he came out of his room, and I accosted him. Broderson asked me what I was doing there and called me a vile name He then went into Wherritt's room and followed him."

After they had gone into the room Miss Thomas said she asked Broderson if he intended to marry her. The reply was that he never intended to marry her. During the conversation Miss Thomas took the revolver from her satchel. Broderson asked her what she intended doing with it, and she replied that she intended to kill herself. Broderson, she said, had warned her from coming to his room, and suddenly he started for her. "It was then," she said, "that I shot him." The room was dark, and as the woman started across the room. she stumbled over the body of the dead man as she fell. She placed, the revolver against her own face and fired. During the recital of the story the woman was remarkably calm, though it is evident that she regrets having fired the shot that killed Broderson.

She who, it is said, had incited the jealousy of Miss Thomas, is Miss Myrtle Way of this city. Upon her Broderson had called of late and on a recent occasion offered her a ring that he had previously given to and taken away from Miss Thomas. Miss Way refused to accept the ring and she was afterward informed by Miss Thomas, who had called upon her, that she and Broderson had quarreled and that he had taken the ring from her the day he had offered it to Miss Way, Broderson and Miss Thomas were discovered last night by George Wherritt, who, with Broderson, occupied a suite of rooms in the McMurtry block. It was in the room generally used by Wherritt that the shooting occurred. It joins that of

The date of the inquest has not yet been decided, owing to the condition of Miss Thomas. The jury viewed the remains and has been excused until the date has been ecided. The funeral of Broderson prob-

MURPHY CASE UP AGAIN

Another Chapter Ended in Litigation Between Priest and Bishop.

SEVERAL MOVES ARE MADE FOR DELAY

After Much Sparring and Several Motions Are Overruled Cause is Set for Hearing at April Term.

SEWARD, Neb., Feb. 26 .- (Special Telegram.)-Judge Sornborger adjourned district court here today, having disposed of all the cases for trial.

The attention of the court was taken up yesterday and this afternoon with the case of Bishop Bonacum against Rev. William Murphy. This case was started last September and came up for hearing in December, at which time both parties asked for time to take the depositions of the church tribunal at Rome. Yesterday the attorney for Bishop Bonacum filed a motion to strike the defendant's answer from the files, but the motion was only sustained in part. This morning the bishop asked for the ten days' time in which to reply, but the judge only allowed him until the afternoon adjournment. He then asked that another judge be called to try the case, but this also was refused. He then asked for a continuance until the next term of court to enable him to take the deposition of the papal delegate at Washington, and this also was refused. The bishop then asked for a change of venue, alleging that Judge Sornborger was prejudiced and biased, belonging to the same political party and was a personal friend of Rev. Murphy. This motion was also denied, and the hisbon ther filed a motion to dismiss the action, but this motion was resisted by the defendant and the case was finally set for hearing at the April term.

The bishop withdrew his motion to dismiss after there appeared to be a disposito hold him for contempt of court This is said to be the ninth action commenced by the bishop against Father Murphy and in November, 1901, Judge Sornborger issued an injunction restraining the bishop from beginning another action until the church courts had given a decision of the matter in controversy.

> The Sunday observance bill created a flurry, Moody moving indefinite postponement, which failed. Boyland opposed it as a matter which should be left to every man's conscience to settle for himself, and it was finally sent back to the judiciary committee without action.

The house was in a scrappy mood and started on the adverse report of the grain dockage bill, which Scobell moved to change to a favorable report. Price asked that the change be made to bring the bill up for consideration, and stated that the commit tee which considered it was composed of three farmers and three grainmen and divided evenly in regard to the value of the bill. Potter, Elliott, Countryman, Craig and Allen opposed a change in the committee report, as they did not see any good in the bill ,declaring that the farmer would be injured instead of benefited by it, but on vote the Scobell amendment carried by vote of 35 to 31.

Welch attempted to secure reconsideration of the Lawson wholesale druggists bill, which was killed in the house yesterday, but failed by a vote of 36 to 22.

The next fight was in the Ninth judicial circuit bill, including the countles of Beadle, Spink, Kingsbury and Noner, called out a sharp tilt between Longstaff of Beadle and Brown of Sanborn, in which the question of veracity took a prominent part regardless of the gavel work of the speaker. Teare and Goddard favored the bill, while Carroll and Craig asked for delay, but it was pushed to a vote, carrying by 67 to 17. The appropriation of $35,000 for an exhibit at St. Louis passed by 77 to 7, after an attempt to amend to $25,000 failed. The house passed the senate bill to authorize the State Board of Charities to dispose of certain lands at the reform school and purchase others. The principal new house bills, not senate duplicates, were to fix salaries of registers of deeds and county auditors, and make terms of town officers three years. The first move on the question of capital removal repeal came in the house to day in a notice by Price of a motion to amend the rules to allow suspension of rules by a majority vote. This will bring the matter up as a test in the house tomorrow.
